Mary L. Maher, et al, against Rebecca J. McGarey, et al, January 26.

Naturalization case of Mary Humilitas Parzinger, set for hearing tomorrow.

A jury at noon today refused damages to Theodore ("Bud") Knox, cafe owner, in his suit against George E. Brown, superintendent of the county farm.

The jury had been out two and a quarter hours deliberating on the case in which the plaintiff had sued for $71.30 as the result of an automobile accident that occured February 12, 1926, in which his automobile was damaged at a turn in the Maryville tourist park.

Several ballots were taken, six or seven according to one juryman, and a three-fourths verdict was brought in, three verniremen dissenting.

Those who found in favor of the defendant were B. M. Chandler, W. S. Ellsworth, J. E. Cottrell, G. L. Byergo, S. J. Schrader, M. R. Miller, A. W. Loomis, Roy Davis and Ed Cliser.

The three who dissented were O. B. Humphrey, Ova Clayton and S. P. Merriner.

Mr. Knox was seeking recovery of damages done to his automobile when it collided with the Brown car, driven by Mr. Brown's son, Felix Robert. The Knox car was driven by Edward Brush, of Stanberry. Both the drivers were students of the College here.

Another Damage Suit.

Another damage suit went to trial today and witnesses were heard this afternoon in the case of Mrs. Ethel Thayer of St. Joseph against the C. H. Atkinson Paving Company of Watertown, South Dakota.

The plaintiff has brought suit against the paving company for $6,000 as the result of an accident in which Mrs. Thayer and her husband, Burt T. Thayer, were injured on the state highway west of Stewartsville, September 17.

The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the defendant in permitting a two-inch water pipe to remain on the road, which is alleged to have caused the Thayer car to be swerved in a ditch.

The accident happened when a party of eighteen had left St. Joseph early in the morning enroute to Cameron.

The Atkinson Paving Company was at that time constructing a concrete road into Stewartsville and the party was traveling over a portion of the road recently opened to traffic.

Counsel for both sides indicated the case would take all of today and tomorrow.

Jury Is Selected.

The jury drawn in the Thayer-Atkinson case included: J. F. Lager, Omer Strong, V. E. Williams, J. D. England, M. J. Dougan, Loren Hackett, Irvin Giffin, Henry Westfall, Harry Lyle, Andy Carter, E. H. Shields, Cyrus Cole.

The attorneys actively engaged in the trial for the plaintiff are O. W. Watkins and Eugene Silverman, of the firms of Groves & Watkins and Strop and Silverman of St. Joseph, and L. C. Cook of the firm of Cook & Cummins of Maryville.

For the defense, W. E. Stringfellow of St. Joseph, J. N. York of Stewartsville and George Robb Ellison of Maryville are the counsel engaged.

M. N. Windle, superintendent of the Atkinson Paving Company, was here as a personal representative of the company. Mr. Windle made his headquarters in and around Maryville at the time the paving company constructed the ten miles of paving south of Maryville and the paving job north of Maryville.

Dr. Dowell Chairman in Cancer Campaign

State-Wide War to Be Waged Upon Disease Responsible for 1 Out of Every 8 Deaths After 40.

Dr. H. S. Dowell of Maryville has been appointed chairman for Nodaway County for the state-wide campaign against cancer that will be conducted from January 17 to 26 under direction of the Missouri Committee of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, according to announcement made yesterday in St. Louis by Dr. Ellis Fischel, state chairman.

The purpose of the campoign is to call attention to need for early treatment of cancer and to let the public know that if the disease is treated properly and in time the outlook for complete cure is very promising. "You should know that early cancer is curable" is the campaign slogan.

One person out of every eight who die after the age of forty, dies from cancer, according to recent reports of the United States Census Bureau, and 95 per cent of the deaths from cancer are are of persons older than 35. It is claimed by the Committee that most of these deaths are unnecessary since early treatment of the cancers would have permitted those afflicted to live out their normal span of life.

Mrs. Hugh Younger and daughter, Betty Gean, of St. Joseph came Tuesday evening to visit Mr. Younger's mother, Mrs. Hattie Younger, and his sister, Mrs. J. B. Cummings. They went to Burlington Junction yesterday to spend a few days with Mrs. Younger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kaufman.

29 LEADERS ARE NAMED

PIG MEETING PLANNED FOR EACH SCHOOL DISTRICT.

STATE WORKER HERE

Winners of Hog Contests Will Be Awarded Prizes; Fleetwood In Charge of Meetings.

Twenty-nine men agreed to act as leaders, in their respective school districts, in a campaign to get all pigs in the district raised according to the worm-free plan, J. Ross Fleetwood, county agent, announced today. These men dediced to do this after discussing the plan with J. W. Burch, livestock extension specialist of the Missouri College of Agriculture, at a meeting of school district representatives in the Farm Bureau office yesterday.

Plans were made to hold a similar meeting in each school district which had a leader who could arrange for the meeting and help with the work.

Mr. Burch gave the results of numerous demonstrations to show that hogs raised free from worms would make 100 pounds of gain, 75 cents cheaper than hogs not free from worms. On Jan. 1, 1926 Nodaway County had 142,000 hogs, since Jan. 1 is a rather low time in the number of hogs on hand due to the fact that most spring pigs are sold. It would seem that during a year Nodaway County would sell approximately 300,000 head of hogs. If these were made to weigh 200 pounds per head, this would mean that raising under the worm-free plan would save $1.50 per head or around $45,000 increased profits to the county each year. All this is theoretical but it gives food for thought as to the actual possibilities of the plan. The plan is not easy of operation and cannot be followed without some definite plan of crop rotation to insure clean pasture. It will require planning to insure housing facilities and water in the different pastures. However it is a system which will pay dividends on the extra effort and expense and should become the aim or goal of most every hog raiser.

Mr. Burch stated that the extension service was anxious to help more people in working out this system and outlined briefly the following plan which was unanimously adopted by the delegates present.

1. Hold a meeting in every school district which enters the contest. This meeting to be arranged by the leader of the school district.

2. The leader and county agent to help those interested in the district make plans to carry out the system.

3. Enroll as many men as possible in the hog production contest.

4. Offer a prize to consist of a set of live stock books to the school district which makes the highest score under the following general scheme of scoring:

Number of pigs raised worm-free, 50; number men raising worm-free pigs first time, 40; number of medal winners in hog production contest, 10.

The above scoring system is subject to change by the committee appointed to plan the contest. This committee consists of Ray King, Hopkins; J. Ward Stevenson, Graham; and Roy Lippman, Maryville. They are to meet and definitely outline the contest as soon as possible.

The committee on awards or judging committee is to be composed of J. W. Burch and at least two bankers. This committee was not definitely appointed at the meeting for they will not have to function until later.

Practically all the extension work on hogs will be carried on in the school districts in this contest this year, therefore any school districts which are desirous of having any of this work done should appoint a leader who is willing to take the responsibility, as soon as possible and notify the county agent. It will be necessary to make out the schedule for the meetings almost immediately and no new schools can be added after the schedule is made out.

The following men signed up to represent their school districts:

E. S. Fannon, Conception Junction; Swinford No. 117; Clarence Norman, Barnard, Morgan No. 143; O. T. Karr, Quitman, Carden No. 103; Loren Hackett, Pickering, Mt. Pleasant No. 64, L. Morehouse, Hopkins; Harry Wamsley, Maryville, Grunder; W. A. Needles, Parnell, Munkers No. 90; Garrett, Maryville, Garrett No. 98; R. G. Ringold, Hopkins, Clyde No. 32; Roy Lippman, Maryville, Martha Washington;

CLASH OVER STATE COURT

RESOLUTION TO COMMEND JUDGES FAILS IN LEGISLATURE.

IRISH LEADER INVITED

Minister of Free State to Address Missouri Assembly.—Senate Committees Withheld.

Jefferson City, Jan. 13.—A resolution to commend the Missouri Supreme Court for its recent work in brushing "aside unessential technical decisions" precipitated a fight on the floor of the House today.

The fight lasted only a few minutes, because the resolution was withdrawn by its author, Representative W. E. Freeland of Taney County.

The fireworks indicated opposition for the criminal code of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice.

Representative Jones H. Parker of St. Louis vigorously opposed the resolution. He declared that while he was for the strict enforcement of the law and believed in getting the most capable men for the judiciary the house would be "treading on dangerous ground if we commend the supreme court for brushing aside technicalities."

Representative Freeland said he had been one of the severest critics of the supreme court in the past and that he wanted publicly to express his appreciation of the work of the court.

Committees Delayed.

Jefferson City, Jan. 13.—Announcement of the selection of committees in the senate was deferred today until tomorrow, when objection to the report of the committee on rules was voiced by Senator Phil M. Donnelly.

The senate adopted a joint resolution introduced by Senator M. E. Casey, extending an invitation to Timothy A. Smiddy, minister of the Irish Free State, to address the General Assembly January 20.

SECOND DEATH IN BANK CASE

CALLED BY CORONER

Rather Than Testify as to Accused Financier's Poisoning, Kinsman Takes Own Life.

Kansas City, Jan. 13.—A few minutes before he was to appear at the coroner's office to be questioned in connection with the death by poison of his brother, Fred Ehlers shot and killed himself here today.

Ehlers returned from Pueblo yesterday where he had gone following the death of his brother, Gus Ehlers, president of the closed Roanoke State Bank. Mrs. Catherine Ehlers, widow of the bank president, had charged in a statement that Fred Ehlers had induced her husband to take bichloride of mercury poison after the bank closed.

Gus Ehlers was arrested shortly after the Roanoke bank closed in December and was charged with embezzlement of the bank's funds. He obtained his release on bond and a few days later became suddenly ill. On December 30, a few hours before his death, he told his wife, according to her statement, "They got me."

An autopsy performed on the body showed that Ehlers had taken a quantity of bichloride of mercury tablets.

Mrs. Ehlers, in her statement, accused Fred Ehlers of having given her husband the poison so that the bank head would be spared any disgrace in connection with the closing of the institution. In a long distance telephone conversation with newspaper men here, Fred Ehlers, who had gone to Pueblo to be at the bedside of his wife, declared the charges of his sister-in-law were "absurd and false." He added that he would return to Kansas City and "clear up the mess."

Ehlers arrived yesterday and was to have been questioned by Chief of Detectives Lincoln R. Toyne this morning. Rather than face authorities, he killed himself in his home.

Marines Ready for "Emergency Service"

Fifth Regiment Relieved of Guarding Mails in This District and Sent to Quantico, Naval Base.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 13.—The Fifth regiment of U. S. Marines has been ordered to concentrate at the Quantico, Va., naval base for "emergency service," it was learned here today.

The fifth regiment, together with the Sixth, has been guarding the United States mails in this section for several months past.

Other members of the Fifth regiment, guarding mails in the Kansas City and Chicago districts, also have been ordered to Quantico, it was understood here.

The removal of the 38 men from this district will cut the marine mail guard force to 21 men.

The situation in Nicaragua is believed responsible for the removal of the leathernecks although Brigadier-General Feland, in charge of marine mail guards on December 29, indicated that his men would be withdrawn at an early date and civil guards substituted for them.

HEARING HELD ON NICARAGUA

HOUSE COMMITTEE CONSIDERS HUDDLESTON RESOLUTION.

ASKS TROOPS' RETURN

Landing Of Marines A Violation Of International Law, Alabaman Says. —Sacasa Protests.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The House foreign affairs committee today opened hearing on the resolution of Representative Huddleston, Democrat, Alabama, to put Congress on record in opposition to keeping American marines in Nicaragua.

Huddleston, the first witness, charged the United States was violating international law by landing troops "on the territory of a friendly nation."

Huddleston said his resolution was designed to put Congress on record as believing "we out to treat Mexico just as though she were a great nation, able to defend herself."

Huddleston conceded the President had constitutional power to invade Nicaragua or Mexico with armed forces.

"I do not think it is right to try to influence Mexico, particularly with regard to religious laws," he said. "I believe in religious freedom, but I believe these are matters which nations must regulate for themselves."

Action Of War, Says Sacasa.

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, Jan. 13.—President Coolidge's special message to Congress on the Mexican Nicaraguan situation is tantamount to an open declaration of war on Nicaragua, should it find favorable response from the American public, Juan B. Sacasa, liberal president and moving spirit of the revolutionary forces, said in a statement to the United Press.

Terming sections of Mr. Coolidge's message "inaccurate" and "erroneous," Sacasa charged that the first arms brought for the uprising which resulted in American intervention were purchased in the United States with the sanction of the American state department.

Borah Submits Program.

Washington, Jan. 13.—After charging that the administration is backing a revolutionary government in Nicaragua and severely condemning the state department's Central American policy, Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committe told the Senate his program for "establishment of peace to the south."

Borah's program demanded:

That the administration withdraw its recognition of the Diaz Nicaraguan regime and permite the people of Nicaragua to hold a new election under our auspices to choose their own government.

That the Mexican land controversy be submitted to arbitration.

"With this program we should inaugurate a campaign of peace to the south," said Borah.

"We should abolish the use of force in our international relations and we would establish a policy which would protect our interests and gain respect for our rights."

VOTERS, MALE AND FEMALE.

What ails the American citizen? In 1926 seventeen organizations of nation-wide scope sponsored a "get-out-the-vote" movement. Capital, labor, the ex-soldier, educational and women's organizations were among them. Now we learn that after all these efforts, in 24 states out of the 48 the total vote failed to equal that cast in the last previous off year, 1922.

In 41 states the vote fell far short of that of the presidential election of 1924, although then only 50 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots; in 1926 it will be a wonder if as many as 40 per cent prove to have responded. And the percentage is steadily growing smaller. What ails the American citizen?

Even after making all proper allowances, the newly enfranchised woman voter must bear her share of the blame. Apparently only 20 per cent of the eligible women vote. This low average pulls the whole down. If 80 male voters out of a possible 100 attend the polls, but only 20 women out of a like 100, we have only 100 voters of both sexes out of a possible 200, or 50 per cent of the total, as compared with the 80 per cent of the men alone. It is time for many women to take their new duties more seriously.

Not all the blame, however, can be placed on the women. The male voter, too, shows deplorable indifference to his country's welfare. What ails the American citizen?

BUSINESS AND BETTING.

The real trouble between Samuel Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals and his manager Rogers Hornsby seems to be out at last. Hornsby had a friend who was a betting commissioner or bookmaker and this friend was a frequent visitor at the training camp and at the games. Breadon objected to the familiarity between the two and objected to Hornsby playing the races while acting as manager of the ball club. Now, the betting-commissioner claims Hornsby owes him the neat sum of $92,000 and threatens some kind of a suit to collect. Hornsby denies the debt. Breadon and Hornsby disagreed over the matter to such an extent that their relations were very strained before the world's series and it isn't very difficult to understand why they could not agree on a three year contract.

If Judge Landis clears up everything in baseball this year, it begins to look like he will earn his $65,000 salary.

Earthquakes, like rain, affect both the just and the unjust, and so California has to be shaken up along with Mexico.

"What do people smoke for, anyway?" asks a puzzled abstainer. Well, for one thing, so that little Doris Dukeman inherit $53,000,000.

Kansas City, through its chamber of commerce, is arranging to put on a five-year industrial campaign at a cost of $750,000 per year. A survey of the city will be made at a cost of from $25,000 to $30,000. President Holland will not undertake a campaign of less than five years because the matter of presenting the opportunities of a city and actually securing new industries is necessarily a slow one and requires much time. An industrial agent will be secured who will devote all his time to the work.

Mr. Holland also explains that Kansas City will be unselfish in this effort. It is the purpose not only to build up the industrial life of that city but aid her trading area. Wherever factories can be secured for Kansas City peculiarly adapted to that city, they will be located there, but if it is apparent that they would do better in Maryville or some other small city, they will be advised to go there, he says.

POLITICS AND FRIENDSHIPS.

The plea of the Missouri highway commission that it be allowed to continue operation free from politics and the influence of personal friendships will be approved by taxpayers throughout the state who have applauded road progress along the lines that have marked it to now, and who would deplore its descent to a lower level of efficiency.

When politics and personal friendships are blended with public improvements of any kind or allowed to exert even slight effect, the results are far from the ideal aimed at when a public contract is fulfilled as conscientiously as a private one.

The work of the Missouri highway commission has been the state's largest comprehensive program of development. Results have placed Missouri in an enviable rank among states of the Union and made it a pacemaker for its neighboring commonwealths. Through policies free from special privilege it has been efficient and economical in a great undertaking. There could be only folly in changing such a policy.—Kansas City Journal.

Farmer's Job to Turn Corn Into Culture

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 13.—The modern farmer should learn how to convert hogs into education, cattle into better homes and corn into culture, Dr. Carl C. Taylor, dean of the graduate school of North Carolina state college, said here in an address before the annual convention of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation.

"The colleges are doing very little to solve the farmers problems," the dean said. "They shy away from farm organizations that are striking at the heart of the problem.

"They are almost purely production minded. They must become economic and social minded."

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS.
Often Caused By Bladder Weakness. It's Nature's Signal Of "Danger Ahead."

A. C. Eckhart, 3917 St. Clair St., Cleveland, O., says: "After taking Lithiated Buchu tablets one week, the burning and smarting left me, and with no desire to get up nights. You should get the credit as I had tried many things. I will be glad to write my experience to any one. Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder as epsom salts do the bowels, driving out deposits, neutralizes excess acids, thereby relieving irritation that causes getting up nights. The tablets cost 2 cents each at Gaugh & Evans, druggists. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.—Adv.

Quarter of a Hundred Years Old

The quarter-century milepost of the foundation of this Company is reached this year. From an unpretentious start, the Company's progress has been notable in mercantile history.

This has not been simply because of its remarkable growth, but more noticeably on account of the success its many stores have attained in giving a service to the public that has been idealized by customers.

Through all the 25 years, the concern of the Company has been chiefly in providing high standard quality goods at lowest possible prices and safeguarding its customers so that this service might always be enjoyed by them.

Day after day and year after year, the Company in every way, has endeavored to serve the public better than was expected. That it has succeeded in these endeavors is shown by the fact that the combined sales of all its stores in 1926 were approximately $25,000,000 more than in 1925.

This and That

"JUST BE YOUR BEST."

Be a shrub in the valley, but Be—
The best little shrub on the side of the hill;
Just be a bush, if you can't be a tree.

"If you can't be the highway, just be a trail,
If you can't be the sun, be a star.
For it isn't by size that you win or fail,
So just—"Be Your Best," where-ever you are."

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wells of Harmony were in Maryville today.

George Butts Back Again; This Time He Gets His Tobacco

George C. Butts, former city editor of the Democrat-Forum and Tribune, now with the Kansas City Star, who came up from Kansas City several weeks ago, ostensibly on a news assignment but really to get his pipe reamer, came back today after a half can of tobacco he left behind on the previous trip.

To make things right with his boss, Mr. Butts had to simulate great activity on another news story, but he couldn't fool his former associates. The can was nearly half full and it was good tobacco.

The new staff man for the Star went to St. Joseph this afternoon to report the Northwest Missouri Press Association meeting there tomorrow and Saturday.

Three Admit Gaming.

Clint Gorman, W. O. Daniels and Robert Nicola, who, with seven others from Hopkins, were charged with gaming, this morning withdrew their pleas of not guilty and entered pleas of guilty. Their punishment was fixed by the court as a fine of $25 each, which was paid and the defendants were released.

They were arrested at Hopkins several days ago by officers from the sheriff's office with P. H. Moorehouse, J. W. Hall, Earl "Jigger" Bock, Dow Huntsman, Walter Gilbert, Ross Wells, and William Hemming. The latter seven are still out on bonds of $200 each on charges of gaming.

Other proceedings of the circuit court:

Cornelius Brady was discharged from parole.

The note suit of the Tarkio Auto Company against Sam Robbins, et al., was dismissed by the plaintiff.

Grocers Must Have Infinite Patience; Service Appreciated

"I want a nickel's worth of gum drops—those red ones."

"Are you sure that these eggs are fresh?"

"Now, give me a nice firm head of cabbage. You see I'm going to have company, and—"

"Do you guarantee this cream to whip?"

Children, young married women, less experienced husbands—the grocer deals with them every day. He fills their orders; he answers patiently their numerous inquiries; he listens to their complaints. Consequently he has a wonderful opportunity to observe human nature, for the whole world must eat.

And, at least, Maryville grocers agree that on the whole "most people appreciate service and good quality, and if you treat them right they'll treat you the same way."

Customers make strange requests; they may sometimes be impatient; they may even exasperate with their critical inspection. But underneath all their faults, they are still "just folks."

"We have calls for mouse traps, lemon squeezers, gasoline and thread," said one local merchant. "We have lots of calls for gasoline from people who wonder why we haven't it and want us to get it for them.

"Yes, we grocers have a pretty good opportunity to study human nature. People come in the store in such different moods. Maybe they'll give an order right off without taking any of your time, or maybe they won't be pleased with anything, and you'll have to use salesmanship to sell to them. "Some come in, and no matter how busy you may be, they say; 'I'm in a hurry. Wait on me right away.' I know several women who habitually wait until about 11:45 o'clock in the morning and then call up and say 'I just forgot to look at the time, I didn't know it was so late. Can I get an order in the next ten or fifteen minutes?'"

"We don't come in contact with our customers so much any more. Farmers used to come to town and stay all day. Now they're here just a few minutes. And a lot of your regular customers you never see, because they telephone their orders. We often have to ask them who they are when they come into the store. Yes, the day when the storekeeper has a barrel of walnuts out in front of the store, to which his friends helped themselves, is gone."

J. E. Pierpoint Executor.

J. E. Pierpoint, of Skidmore, was appointed in probate court yesterday as executor of the estate of Michael Freeze who died at Skidmore Jan. 9.

MORNINGSIDE TO PLAY HERE

IOWA COLLEGIANS MEET BEARCATS SATURDAY NIGHT.

BOAST STRONG QUINT

Invaders Play Hillyards At St. Joseph Tomorrow Night.—Clash Gives Line On Two States.

H. Frank Lawrence, director of athletics at the State Teachers College, completed arrangements late this morning for another home game for his College Bearcat basketball team. The Morningside College five of Sioux City, Ia., will appear on the College court at 8 o'clock Saturday night. This will give Maryville basketball fans an opportunity to see the Bearcats in action twice this week, since they meet the Tarkio College five tonight.

Morningside comes to Missouri for a two-game series this week. The team left Sioux City this morning for St. Joseph, where the Hillyards, national A. A. U. champions, will be met tomorrow night. They will come to Maryville at noon Saturday.

The game Saturday night will make a home schedule of the games for the Bearcats. There will be six conference games here, two non-conference collegiate tilts, and one game each with the Hillyards and the Catholic Community Club teams.

The Morningside team is one of the strongest in the Middle West, according to reports from Sioux City. On Monday night this team defeated the University of South Dakota cagers, 32 to 16. Morningside is in the North Central Conference, an organization of larger colleges of Iowa and nearby states, and it has enjoyed a number of years of successful basketball.

In speaking of the game today, Coach Lawrence said, "The game Saturday night will give us an opportunity to compare a high-class Missouri team with a leading Iowa College five. While Morningside boasts of an enviable record, we hope to make things quite interesting on Saturday night.

"The fact that the Morningsiders are playing the Hillyards is proof enough that they have a strong quintet."

The officials for Saturday night's game have not been selected. Mr. Lawrence sent out queries this morning to several well-known referees, and he hopes to have an outstanding man to run the game.

Student season tickets will admit for the game. Persons having season reserved seats will also find them available for this additional game.

Keep Fit!

Good Health Requires Good Elimination

TO be well, you must keep the blood stream free from impurities. If the kidneys lag, allowing body poisons to accumulate, a toxic condition is created. One is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and achy. A nagging backache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. If you have reason to suspect improper kidney functioning, try Doan's Pills—a tested stimulant diuretic. Users praise them throughout the United States. Ask your neighbor!

Mr. Fan, Meet Mr. Quigley

By H. Frank Mapel and William L. Lawrence (both sober).

Les' you do not realize the attraction, in addition to the fast basketball which will be displayed on the Bearcat court tonight, we would like to introduce to you Mr. Ernest C. Quigley, dean of American officials, who will work this traditional cage tilt between the Bearcats and their Tarkio College opponents.

When Harvard plays Yale at the Crimson stadium or the Yale bowl, Quigley is the man who digs down through the pile of blue and crimson jerseys and declares the football to be within six inches of a fitst down.

When the colorful crowd at the Tournament of Roses on New Years Day in Pasadena, Cal., sees the best of the west lock horns with the pride of the south or the elite of the east year after year, that crowd is also thrilled by the stentorian tones of tonight's official as, disregarding radio and long distance telephone, he informs the world in general and the Western Hemisphere in particular, with "YOU CAN'T DO THAT," or with his famous "ILLEGAL!"

When Risberg and Gandil and other "pitchers" of baseball games gather to display their many crookedness, it is the voice of "Quig" which calls the balls and strikes and ins and outs with a fairness which has made his reputation as clean and white as the driven snow. Because he is fair in all sports, he has attained gigantic popularity wherever he has worked.

From coast to coast, he jumps with utter disregard for such trival matters as time and space. One would almost believe that "Quig" was possessed of the famous seven league boots in addition to a powerful amplifier on each lung.

Last Friday night "Quig" refereed a basketball game in St. Joseph. Since that time it is rumored that he has arbitrated two bull fights on the balmy shores of Sunny Spain; blown the diplomatic whistle in the Nicaraguan dispute; and handled all the mush in a seventy-hour dog derby in the chilly atmosphere of Noma, Alaska. And between spells he caught time for a Coney Island sandwich in Greenwich Village, and a couple o' winks atop a fast air mail plane somewhere in Kansas.

And he'll be with us tonight.

Seriously, Quigley is the outstanding light in officialdom, and the College is fortunate in securing his services for two basketball games this year. He will be here also for the game with the Cape Girardeau Indians on February 15.

H. O. Graham of the Graham stores is here from Ottumwa, Ia., for a few days on business.

The Mikado Dies--Strange Rites Mark Passing of Old Ruler, Accession of New

No. 1 shows the emperor's aged mother, Madame Naruko Yanigawara, bowed in grief, leaving the imperial palace shortly after his death.

No. 3 shows a "mourning cloak" being set up in one of the main streets of the capital, with news of the emperor's passing inscribed under it.

Picture No. 5 shows thousands of Tokio school girls bowing at the gates of the imperial palace to pay tribute to the new emperor.

No. 6 gives a glimpse of the strange ceremony conducted at Hayama by the Buddhist priests of the sect of Nichiren, who stood for an hour in the surf, dashing water on themselves and beating on hand drums, while they prayed for the soul of the imperial departed.

The Web of Fear

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Through a plot engineered by James Mulholland and five aides, Ames, Chester, Quantrill, Fenne and Vereker, Robert Masterton, accused of selling government secrets, is sentenced to 12 years hard labor in Atlanta prison. His millionaire grandfather is the only one who believes him innocent. A beautiful and wealthy young woman, Cynthia Knowles, is greatly affected by the verdict. The plotters think they are perfectly safe with Masterton behind the bars. Vereker is arrested and sentenced to three years in Atlanta. Cynthia confesses to Mulholland that her love for Masterton is dead and her life is ruined. She agrees to marry Mulholland. Masterton's grandfather dies and leaves him six million dollars. Fenne demands money from Mulholland who brutally thrusts him aside. A few hours after Cynthia is married she receives a note accusing Mulholland of engineering Masterton's conviction. Mulholland cannot convince her of his innocence, and she locks him out of her room. Vereker, dying in prison, offers proofs to free Masterton. He asks Masterton's forgiveness and receives it after giving him the names of the conspirators. Masterton solemnly promises that he will not invoke the law but will take vengeance into his own hands. Back in New York Masterton befriends Sadie Hicks, hungry and looking for a job, and accidentally learns from her that Cynthia has married Mulholland. He gives Sadie a job as his secretary and declines an offer to take up his old duties. He sees Mulholland, Quantrill, Ames and Chester dining at the Ritz, greets them as though they were friends and walks over to Cynthia who is dining in another part of the room. He drives home with her. She tries to atone for her lack of faith in him. He tells her she is the only woman he will ever love. Mulholland joins them and learns that Cynthia has told Masterton of the anonymous accusation. On his way home Fenne meets Masterton and asks him to his room, promising to give him valuable information.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 15

The Betrayer

Mr. Amos Quantril awoke with a sense of discomfort. He raised his chubby white-whiskered face from the pillow and blinked at the little silver clock by his bedside. It was not yet seven-thirty.

Mr. Quantrill felt quite certain that there was no more sleep for him. When he had lit a cigarette and sat down to breakfast, he had a caller.

It seemed remarkable that Chester (a tardy riser) should present himself before seven-thirty in the morning. But the members of the fraternity never denied themselves to each other when there was urgent business on hand.

"Amos," he said, "what did you think of last night's business? What does Masterton mean to do?"

"I don't know," confessed Quantrill. "I can't tell what to make of it."

"Well, I can! Masterton is wise to the whole business, and he means to get his own back. We all thought so."

"My dear Ches., have you roused me out of my beauty sleep to talk generalities?"

"I've noticed this about you before," said Chester grimly, "you're the ostrich type; the bird that sticks its head in the sand and refuses to see the danger. Now listen. When Masterton left us last night, where did he go. He went right across to Cynthia, who was with that lawyer, Coleman—it was he who defended Masterton at the trial.

"Now, you know how things are between Mulholland and Cynthia. That household is broken up. We didn't get much news of it, but we do know, for we had it straight from Mulholland himself, that Cynthia got an anonymous letter accusing him. Whose work was that? Fenne's! It couldn't have been anyone but Fenne; the little snake has gone back on us all. I consider Mulholland's one vital blunder was to let Fenne into this business."

"Fenne was always the weak spot," agreed Quantrill. "But Jim always declared we shouldn't have pulled it off without him.

"But Fenne has cleared right out!" said Quantrill anxiously. "Nothing has been seen or heard of him since that business of the letter."

"Are you sure, Ches.?" Where did you get this?"

"From Mulholland. He rang me up soon after midnight. He told me Masterton had been to the house, and had just left. He also said that a man was watching the house, and had gone off down the street in the same direction as Masterton. He saw him go, and he hasn't any doubt it was Fenne."

Quantrill sat up.

"Ches!" he said, "You are right—this thing is deadly dangerous! What's the Chief doing—what steps is he taking?"

"I don't know. It was impossible to say much over the wire; and when I reached the house Mulholland had gone. I don't know what he's doing. But I know what I'm going to. I shall get hold of Fenne. If he wants money, I'm for paying him. One way or the other, I shall settle with Fenne," said Chester. "Are you coming?"

"Me!" quavered Quantrill. "It's impossible—in my position—I couldn't on any account be seen with Fenne now!"

"Possibly that's the Chief's idea, too," said the other grimly. "Get word to him and warn him—Ames as well. Tell them to join you here. I'll be back as soon as I can and report."

He left the house abruptly.

Fenne's lodgings consisted of two rooms on the second floor. The front door stood open when Chester arrived a minute or two before eight, and he went upstairs and was admitted by the janitress.

"Why, the bed ain't been slept in," said, she, glancing in. Then she pushed on into the sitting room.

Chester hesitated. He wished the janitress had not seen him. The next moment there was a shrill scream from the sitting room, then a scurry of skirts and stumbling feet. She grasped at his arm, hysterically.

"What's the matter!" he exclaimed.

"Mr. Fenne . . . in there!" panted the woman. "Go an' see. Let me out o' this . . . I want to get out!"

Chester hurried in. He stopped in the doorway, dumb-struck.

A huddled figure lay on the floor face upwards. One arm was doubled across the body, the other extended stiffly. It was Julius Fenne. There was a dark stain on the carpet, and a blue hole under the right temple. The jaw was set in a fixed, sardonic grin. He had been killed at close quarters, for the skin was scorched and blackened with powder grains. A heavy revolver lay on the floor, three feet away.

The janitress was the first to recover . . . . Some impulse of curiosity brought her back . . . The fascination of the unusual. She appeared in the doorway again, white faced, and found Chester still rooted to the spot, staring.

"Police . . . got to get the police!"

"You fetch them!" said Chester, rousing himself, "go to the corner. . . . always one there. Bring him at once."

She hurried away on her errand excited and full of a sense of importance. Chester darted to the window and looked down the street, to make sure there was no policeman near. Then he took a rapid survey of the room.

There was a heavy old Georgian desk in the corner, locked. He stooped over the body, found a key chain leading into the trousers pocket, slipped the ring off it, and unlocked the desk.

He searched the inner compartments and drawers swiftly, stuffing certain papers and dockets that he found, into his pocket. A dozen possibilities ran through his mind. Fenne in spite of his cleverness was such a fool in some ways, there was no knowing what evidence he might have left behind him. In a few minutes it would be too late.

Most Georgian desks have a "private drawer," which is no secret to anybody used to that type of furniture. Chester found this one quickly and took the papers in it. None of them seemed at a glance to be of importance. He was making sure. He locked the desk and replaced the keys on the chain. It was all done with feverish rapidity.

He glanced at the grate. The fire was dead, there was a lot of scattered ash in the fender, as though someone had been burning papers there. He glanced at the window table where stood a lamp and inkstand. There was a blotting pad, fairly clean but showing the signs of recent writing.

Chester detatched the top sheet from the pad and folded it, stowing it with the other things he had annexed. He also slipped his hand into the dead man's breast pocket deftly, without disturbing the lie of the jacket, and took the worn leather pocket-case he found. The whole search did not occupy two and a half minutes.

He heard the tread of heavy feet on the stairs, and instantly placed himself in the passage just outside the open door. A big policeman appeared.

"Ah!" said he abruptly, as his eye lit upon the body. "Anything been touched here?"

"Not by me," said Chester.

Bedison

Miss Laura Snyder of Red Oak, Ia., is enjoying a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Snyder this week.

Sunday School at Bedison has increased lately in numbers, but not nearly all those who are enrolled are attending.

A contest was begun Sunday between the "Blues" and the "Reds" to see who could secure the most Sunday School students between now and Easter Sunday. The side which is defeated will then entertain the winning side.

Mrs. Lambert is captain of the "Reds" and Mrs. Chas. Walton is captain of the "Blues."

The revival at Bedison will continue throughout this week. The Reverend T. M. Walton has been delivering some very interesting and instructive sermons and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neal have helped to furnish some entertaining musical numbers.

Mrs. Estella Lambert returned Saturday night from Shenandoah, Iowa, where she had been visiting her parents and attending a church convention.

Little Lorace Walton has not been very well this week, as he has been having a cold.

E. M. Bryant and Wm. Clester helped Herman Wilmes Tuesday to cut wood on the place near Clyde, to which Mr. Wilmes will move soon.

Joe Myer butchered Wednesday. He was assisted by Herman Wilmes.

Mrs. Wm. Clester and daughter, Florence, went to Maryville Wednesday morning on the local.

E. M. Bryant has been rather "under the weather" for a few days, but is better.

Charles Roach and Cecil and Dale Stewart were hauling mill feed from the car on the track at Bedison Wednesday.

U. S. Highways Are Best in World, Says Eastern Authority

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Highways in the United States are the best highways in the world, and the famous road builders of ancient Rome would have been staggered by the scientific methods of modern road contractors, H. S. Mattimore, of the Pennsylvania department of highways told the convention of American Road Builders here.

"Engineers and scientists have made this country foremost in road building," he said. "Various formulae have been tested until perfection has been reached. Added to this the stimulus of the "good roads movement" has made good paving a national necessity."

A plea for the award of paving contracts to the "lowest responsible bidder," was made by Leslie R. Ames, acting engineer of the North Carolina highway commission.

"The annual expenditure for highways exceeds a billion dollars," he said. "This means thousands of contracts, which must be controlled, when awarded. That is, the firms given the contracts should be investigated in regard to their ability to carry out the terms of the contracts."

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"My Twenty-Four Hours"

By Benito Mussolini, Premier of Italy

as told to

THOMAS B. MORGAN, Rome Manager of the United Press.

Copyright 1927 by United Press Associations.
All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited in all parts of the world.

(This is the eighth of a series of articles on his daily life and work by Benito Mussolini, as told to Thomas B. Morgan, Rome manager of the United Press. Each article in this series has been personally revised, corrected and approved by Premier Mussolini.)

One very useful assistance in pushing forward the day's work has resulted from our efforts to reduce the amount of talk to a minimum. The government offices were formerly the abode of babbling tell-tales who dwelled on political gossip or hearsay from morning till night, commenting and recommenting, forecasting and adjudicating, taking up the government's time and empeding the business of state. From my office down, this prevalence of wasted discourse is now at an end. Government employees cannot engage in protracted political chatter on the government's time. I am, severely and pre-eminently, no exception to this rule.

Speeches occupied no little part of a premier's time under the old regime Some of them made it their principal activity. They devoted days and days to a single speech, copying and recopying, changing and adjusting, so as to make a great display before the people. Some even based their capacity to hold the offices of premier on their ability to make a speech. Their administrative functions were subordinated to their oratorical reputations and the government thus suffered for the lack of a thorough administrative policy. There is none of that today. Speech-making has been relegated to the background.

There was a period in which fascism was enirenching its position. Then it wws necessary to carry the people, the meaning of our government. At that time, first, for the inspiration of our own adherents, and secondly, for the instruction of the people, there was real need to tell the people why we had assumed power and what we intended to do for the good of Italy. Today, our mission is well-known and accepted by all classes of the people. There is no need of flowery orations and exhortations. We have translated into acts what we promised in words.

This spirit of doing and not talking has penetrated not alone the government organization but also the ranks of the people, high and low. It runs deep in the affairs of the fascist party, from those who direct it to those who serve in the ranks. I have given implicit orders that all oratory and celebrations are to be dispensed with and have established that this is the hour of work and that speeches and ceremony can be postponed until after the work is done.

A recent example of how the spirit of silent work has thoroughly saturated our people, is shown in the construction of the new railroad along the Ionion sea in Calabria. The work of constructing this railroad has gone on silently and laboriously for many months. Thirteen new and extensive bridges have been built and yet, not in a single case was there a speech delivered, whereas, formerly, such events were accompanied by orations and the flare of trumpets, the clapping of hands and great shout of joy. The joy was there and the events popular, but no speeches overdid it with useless words.

Recently we set up seventeen new provinces to facilitate the administration of these localities. Such events were usually accompanied by great outpourings, parades and speeches, yet in not one of these new provinces which were overjoyed and rang all the bells of the ancient cathedrals was there any sign of oratorical display and all in compliance with the new spirit of silent work. The administration of these provinces was organized and set to work without occasioning the slightest flurry on the part of the population, which continued at their tasks more actively than ever, as a thanksgiving for their new dignity.

While this new feeling has taken root in workshop and field, it has also embedded itself in the upper branches of the government. Hitherto, the Italian Chamber of Deputies and Senate were haunts where the politician could pour forth for hours on some unimportant theme for the sole purpose of parading his oratory before the nation. Days and weeks and sometimes months would be spent in the discussion of a single measure. The members of both branches of parliament applied themselves listlessly to the proceedings. Some brought their latest novels, others their correspondence which had accumulated for weeks, others found it comfortable to take their afternoon naps—all, while some one was discoursing ferventiy upon some trifling theme to what were really, the bare benches. This system was exploited for the sole purpose of flaunting the oratory of the members upon the public, for the day's proceedings were always voluminously reported through many columns daily in the press.

It used to be a great discomfort for me to attend the Chamber before I assumed the Premiership. I could hardly sit through those unending sessions where nothing for days and days was ever accomplished. When I became premier, it became an amusement for we still had the old alignments of parties and the oratory continued to flow. It was a diversion to answer the attacks and to go straight to a point instead of theorizing and dallying over inconsequential points. It was necessary to bring the theorists to the plane of concrete fact and force them to face situations in their stern reality.

The Chamber of Deputies and the Senate now function with marked regularity. There is no more of the protracted speeches. The deputies and senators have a revived consciousness that their duty is to the nation and not to themselves. The agenda is placde before the house and those competent to speak on the measures give their views and the measure is acted upon without those attendant displays of oratory of former days, for which a whole system of registry had to be kept that the orators might all speak in their turn. It is this new spirit of business-like service which has penetrated our people and it is in no place more marked than in the Chamber and Senate. The Deputies and Senators have caught the spirit and perform their functions without the former volubility, that the affairs of the government might proceed with the least possible delay.

This spirit has resulted in great saving of time for me. It has not been necessary for me to prepare a speech for either the Chamber of Deputies or the Senate for almost a year now. The last two addresses I made were of an educational character,—one in Perugia on the opening of the University and the other in Bologna, before the Italian Scientific Congress, just before an attempt was made on my life. My addresses before the two houses of parliament can now be delivered in a few words. The last time I spoke before the Senate, asking for the passage of some drastic police measures, I did not say more than ten words. The time, therefor, which was ordinarily spent on the preparation of long orations for the pleasure of the parliamentarians can now be devoted to the administration of some practical utility.

And speeches to the Fascist Grand Council have been cut to a minimum. Our work is all prepared and discussed beforehand so that when those who direct the affairs of the party meet, little time is lost in useless rhetoric. Sometimes, it devolves upon me to make a speech to various gatherings of fascists, these speeches are becoming shorter and shorter. When enthusiastic groups of fascists come to salute me in the Piazza Colonna and beckon me to come on to the balcony my words are few. It is enough to utter a few phrases to give the message and watch-word of the hour. It has happened a hundred times, when I have been called to the balcony, that I have simply shouted "No speech! Go away!"

Italians have followed my leadership and have enlisted in a union which I have called for some time "the Corporazione del silenziari." By that is intended the promotion of acts and the subordination of words. Too long had we discussed and formulated and philosophized. Now we have begun to perform and these performances are making themselves every day more manifest in our increasing production, our intensive agriculture, our building of transportation systems, our construction of ships and our manifold activities in this complex civilization. Italy is working more and talking less than ever.

Fasting two or three times a month is good for anyone says Premier Mussolini in his next article to appear in the Democrat-Forum and Tribune tomorrow, explaining that to this custom he ascribes much of his physical and mental wellbeing. Mussolini declares that he "abhors fat people" and has even no sympathy for his brother, Arnauld, who is fat.

CLOSING GRAIN REVIEW.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Wheat prices were steady at the opening and rallied slightly later but ran into considerable profit taking on the advance on the Chicago board of trade today. This selling caused a small recession, and closing prices were fractionally lower than the previous close. The cash market was very slow, with a few sales made at unchanged prices.

Corn was sharply higher but encountered profit taking in May at and over 82 cents. This shaded the best prices to some extent and the close was but fractionally higher than Wednesday's prices. The cash market was ½ to 2 cents higher.

Oats closed fractionally lower.

Provisions closed lower.

Elmo has been chosen as the scene for the boys and girls basketball tournament by the Nodaway County Athletic Association, according to information received by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent of schools, from Ed Adams of Barnard, secretary of the Association. March 5 is the date decided upon.

Trophies are to be awarded to the winners and, according to rules agreed upon, each team belonging to the county association may enter ten boys and twelve girls players.

Entries should reach Mr. Adams by February 7, according to his communication to Mr. Somerville.

The executive board of the Association will meet at the county superintendent's office February 19 to decide upon the date for the track meet. Burlington Junction has been awarded the meet by the association.

Missourians With Old Plates Welcome

Not Half of Iowans Have Theirs Yet, Declares Sentinel, Shenandoah Newspaper.

Denial that Missourians without 1927 licenses will be arrested in Iowa is made by the Shenandoah Sentinel. In fact, says the Sentinel, not half the Iowa cars are equipped with 1927 plates.

The newspaper continues:

"Must be some mistake. If those Missourians were threatened with arrest it must have been for some other reason than having Missouri 1926 plates. About half the Iowa cars are not equipped with 1927 plates yet and their drivers are not threatened with arrests for that and will not be until after February 1. Maybe those Missourians were driving recklessly or were not obeying the traffic rules. Just keep coming, you 'show me' fellows, and you will get the glad hand here if you conduct yourselves in a way to deserve the welcome."

Class Day Exercises Held This Morning

Alice Swinford Gives Salutatory Address.—Class Play, "Honor Bright" Tonight.

"I should like to use a famous quotation this morning, 'Amici nos morituri te salutamus,' which means, 'Friends, we are about to die, salute you'," said Miss Alice Swinford, in her salutatory address for the mid-year graduation class of the Maryville High School at the class day exercises held this morning. "We who are about to die as far as our high school career is concerned greet you this morning in our last assembly.

"We, the January class of 1927 are hosts, and you, the friends, teachers and parents are our guests."

"We are glad our classmates and schoolmates are here because they have been comrades in our high school troubles and joys. We are glad if any members of the school board are here, because they have furnished the equipment for our education. We are glad our teachers are here, because they have been patient in trying to teach us what we have at times not been overly anxious to learn.

"We would have been disappointed if your friends had not been here, because we all need and want friends, whether in pleasure or sorrow.

"Lastly, we are glad our parents are here, because they have been our inspiration and help in realizing our hopes of graduation. They have sympathized and stood ready to assist at all times.

This graduating class of sixteen has at last reached its hour of glory, the time which has been looked forward to so eagerly for four years, the time when we as hosts can welcome you to our midst and ask you to enjoy with us our last assembly. Help us to feel greater and nobler for having completed a high school course.

"So again I say, in conclusion, "Amici, nos morituri te salutamis'."

Tonight at 8 o'clock the class will present in the high school auditorium a three-act comedy drama, "Honor Bright." This play is directed by Miss Mabel Messick and Miss Augusta Quell.
